Dr. Roger Batzel
 Director, Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory
 Livermore, California 94550

Roger:

For the past two years you have been kind enough to assign [redacted] Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory employee, on rotation to CIA's Directorate of Intelligence. While his principal work focused on the analytical side of the nuclear proliferation problem, he has also helped our operational people in providing technical guidance on some of our technical collection systems. In this role he has been invaluable.

Although his two-year assignment to the Agency ends this year, our Operations Directorate would like to keep [redacted] for an additional year. I'm not too anxious to go to the well too often since you folks have been extremely helpful to us over the years. But if it's convenient for you and will not jeopardize [redacted] career in any way with the Laboratory, we would be pleased to have him extend his rotational assignment for an additional year.
